Clark County Coin Club (CCCC)

The CCCC origination was mainly contributed to E. Lawrence Brooks Jr., (1923 - 1990) who loved coins. He owned and operated a small coin shop on East High Street close to Schaefer Junior High School where he taught math. Many students visited his coin shop to fill their blue coin books from his pot of coins, which some believe Larry seeded so the books could be filled with ease. For several years, he made his coin shop available for the club meetings.

E. Lawrence Brooks Jr. was a man who valued education and public service. He was a teacher's advocate, serving as president of both the teacher's association and teacher's union. He worked in the central office of Springfield City Schools as a math coordinator. He also was president of the Evening Optimist and helped coach little league baseball.

Over time the Clark County Coin Club has been an ongoing organization which has had several members contribute to it. The Clark County Coin Club scholarship originally founded in 1999 in honor of Larry has been expanded to include other members who have contributed significantly to the Clark County Coin Club and have been recognized by the club to be honored as a contributor. The members recognized to date are below:

Dr. Robert Brown	Dr. Dale French	Janet Johnson
Richard Farish	Doug Porter	Patrica Rittenhouse
Kenny Townsend	Harold Wesley	Warren Lyon
Orva Detrick

It is these individuals that the Clark County Coin Club dedicates this scholarship to in the hopes that it will inspire Clark County students of today to pursue leadership roles in their community and who knows maybe become numismatist and even better, future members of the club.
